06 SECTION 6

Digital assets

Accounts, cloud storage, subscriptions and anything else that exists only behind a sign-in.

BEFORE YOU WRITE ANYTHING ON THESE PAGES

Do not write a password, PIN, passphrase, recovery phrase, seed phrase, one-time code, or account recovery key in this book.

This book records WHERE each sign-in is kept and WHAT should happen to the account. It never records the credential itself. If this book is lost, leaves the house, or is photographed, nothing in it can be used to sign in anywhere.

WHY THIS SECTION EXISTS

Most of what a person owns today is not in a drawer. It is behind a sign-in that nobody else has ever used. A family can find a house and a car. They cannot find a photo library, a loyalty balance, or a subscription that keeps charging. Those are recorded here.

1 LIST IT

One band per account. Work from your phone's app list and a recent bank statement.

2 POINT, DON'T WRITE

Record where the sign-in details are held — the password manager, a sealed envelope, your attorney.

3 SAY WHAT HAPPENS

Keep, download, memorialise, or close. Tick one per band, or leave it 'not sure'.

YOU WILL NEED

Your phone's list of installed apps. · A recent bank or card statement.

Nothing else. You do not need to sign in to anything to complete this section.

THE HARD CASES

if any of these apply to you

Five situations where recording the location matters more than anywhere else in this book.

- Photographs and documents held in the cloud
  A family cannot download a library it does not know exists. Record the service, roughly how much is in it, and whether anything in it is irreplaceable.
- Money held in a form that only exists as a key
  Some holdings are reachable only with a recovery phrase. Record only that the phrase exists and exactly where it is kept. Never record the phrase itself.
- Websites and domain names you own
  These expire quietly and cannot always be recovered afterwards. Record the registrar and whether anyone else is named on the account.
- Loyalty points and reward balances
  Frequently lost because nobody thinks of them as an asset. Record the programme and whether it can be transferred or redeemed by someone else.
- Subscriptions that keep charging
  The most common avoidable cost after a death. Record each one and mark it close first on the cancellation sheet.
